

Duty of Candour Report 2023-2024

All health and social care services in the UK have Duty of Candour responsibilities. This is a legal requirement which means that when things go wrong and mistakes happen, the people affected understand what has happened, receive an apology and organisations learn how to improve for the future.

An important part of this duty is to provide an annual report about the duty of candour in our service. This short report describes how Haling Park Care Home has operated the duty of candour during the period from 1st April 2023 to the 31st of March 2024. We hope you find this report useful.

Haling Park is a High-quality purpose-built home which provides nursing care or general personal care and social support. Our service is dedicated to positive encouragement and empowerment to allow residents to be as independent as possible. We believe that the resident should be at the heart of what we do and the full involvement of each resident in their care is sensitively provided.

Within the last 12 months, there have been 2 incidents at the home, to which the duty of candour applied. These are where types of incidents have happened which are unintended or unexpected, and do not relate directly to the natural course of someone's illness or underlying condition.

Types of Unexpected or Unintended incidents specified within the legislation.	The number of people affected

When we realised the events above had happened, we followed the correct procedure. This means we informed the people affected, apologised to them in person and in writing, and offered to meet with them and their families. We reviewed what happened and what if anything, went wrong to try and learn for the future.

If something has happened that triggers the duty of candour, our staff report this to the Home Manager who has responsibility for ensuring that the Duty of Candour procedure is followed. The Home manager records the incident or accident and reports it as necessary to the Care Quality Commission, the local contracting authority, the Regional Director, and the Quality Director, for the company. When an incident or accident has happened, the Home Manager and staff set up a learning review. This allows everyone involved to review what happened and identify changes for the future.

All new staff learn about the duty of candour at their induction. We know that serious mistakes can be distressing for staff as well as people who use care and their families.

In one specific accident, falls risk assessment was analysed and evaluated post-accident, as per protocol, and a new plan of action was devised, which appears to be effective.

Regarding the other incident, an investigation was carried out to find the root cause. From this, lessons were learned, and the actions were discussed, which appear to be effective as no further similar incidents have occurred thus far:

This is the sixth year of the duty of candour being in operation and it has helped focus our learning and planning for improvements as a service and as a company. It has helped us to remember that people who use our services have the right to know when things could be better, as well as when they go well.

As required, we have made this report available to the regulator but in the spirit of openness, we have published it to share with our residents and their relatives too.
